Music on Radio

• Celebrity Concert with Ronald Turini (CBC Radio, December 26), was superb. We enjoyed the beautiful, refined singing of the St. Nicholas Ukrainian Catholic Choir on Parade of Choirs, (December 27), as well as many other fine programs of music that CBC Radio has presented throughout the fall and winter. Our congratulations to you! We hope to hear many more programs of that type in the New Year. Our family prefers the old masters such as Beethoven, Mozart and Brahms.

—S.N., Cudworth, Sask.

• There are always some unexpected surprises around Christmas time and I think the Nutcracker performance was one of them. (Winnipeg Pops Concert, Friday, December 21, CBC Radio). . . . Mary Liz Bayer's imagery and poetry so filled the magic mood of the music that it was sheer delight from beginning to end. I would like to hear it all repeated sometime.

—L.B.A., Winnipeg, Man.

For More Music on TV

• I wish that I would have been able to thank you for your programs on TV during the last year. I am sorry that I cannot do so . . . except for one or two shows they have not been worth looking at. . . . I wonder what those in charge think of our mentality. A few years ago we had a weekly concert which everyone enjoys. Now we must wait for two or three months before we get any concerts.—Mrs. C.G.G., Winnipeg, Man.

Generally, the pressures of other programming do not permit the regular scheduling of music on the English CBC-TV network; because music is not visual in nature, it is felt that CBC Radio serves music lovers adequately, particularly since the introduction last fall of higher tonal quality in the network. However, Winnipeg viewers should remember that the CBC French Network station, CBWFT, Channel 6, regularly schedules fine music at 5:30 p.m. each Saturday, and most weeks at 8:30 p.m. Sunday, both concerts an hour in duration. Musical performances overcome the language barrier, and therefore are equally enjoyable for both French- and English-speaking viewers.

Appreciate Opera Plot Summaries

• We are listening to the Metro-politan Opera broadcast . . . and the opera is the unfamiliar (to us) Pelléas and Mélisande (Saturday, December 29, CBC Radio). Our meagre library does not contain comment on Debussy's works . . . and so we have not been able to read up on the opera before hand. . . . Indeed, the only way we were able . . . to enter into the opera was through the summary you have begun to print on the Saturday Radio page.

At first sight it seems to take up so much of the Saturday space, but for the many opera fans who listen, I am sure that it is much appreciated.

—J.P.H., Manitou, Man.

Cook's Tour

• Why do we have to take up valuable space in the CBC Times with the recipe column? I am a collector of recipes and cookbooks but have never seen a recipe in the column that is not listed in the simplest cookbook, or in the wide variety of cooking columns to which we are exposed in magazines and newspapers.

With such a shortage of space, and subscription rates going up, why not use the column for news or musical personalities or Canadian music, which we cannot obtain elsewhere?

—M.B.M., Saskatoon, Sask.

Immediately after each Thursday telecast of LADIES FIRST, our telephone switchboard is busy with calls asking for printed copies of the recipes demonstrated. At one time, such requests were filled by having each recipe duplicated and mailed out to the interested parties. The time consumed and the paper and postage necessary were excessive, so it was felt that inclusion of the recipes in the CBC Times would cut down on the number of requests and also would furnish a convenient way for non-subscribers to obtain the recipe—simply purchase the CBC Times at their newsstand.

Max Ferguson Gets Evening Show

FANS OF MAX FERGUSON who have missed his inimitable brand of humour in recent months, since his show was moved from an early evening to an early morning time period last October, will be glad to hear that Max is returning to night-time radio with a weekly half-hour program.

The new show, Max Ferguson Review, will be heard on Friday nights, beginning February 1, at 8:00 p.m.

The Review will be heard in addition to the morning programs, which continue in their present time period, 8:35 a.m.; in fact, the Friday evening show will be made up of a collection of skits and music culled from the morning shows through the week.

On Our Cover . . .

Al Oeming fondles a lynx kitten as deer fawns watch on his Alberta Game Farm. CBC-TV commences a second 13-week series of visits to the farm Saturday, January 26. (See feature, page 7.)

THIS IS A rapidly-changing world. What was thought to be fact yesterday is known to be fiction today. Occupations that once required skilled personnel now are dominated by machines. Workers are being called on more and more to formulate ideas and discover facts, rather than just to apply them.

Is our education system meeting the challenge presented by this rapid change? Three panel discussions focussing on this topic will be heard on CBK Saskatchewan during the next two months. The first is broadcast Tuesday, January 29, at 8:00 p.m., and the remaining two will be heard February 26 and March 26. The Saskatchewan Federation of Home and School has arranged the programs, in co-operation with the Saskatchewan Department of Education.

Chairman for the three discussions will be Judge R. L. Brownridge of Regina. The first panel will consist of: Henry Janzen, director of curricula for the provincial education department; Dr. Owen G. Holmes, chemistry professor at the U. of S.; and W. A. Herle, immediate past-president of the Saskatchewan Teachers' Federation, and a teacher at Central Collegiate Institute in Regina.

Home and School groups throughout the province will receive discussion guides which will help them to carry on the topic after each broadcast. These guides also are available to the public by writing to Mrs. W. A. Hennigan, 1237 Avenue H North, Saskatoon. Mrs. Hennigan, secretary of the Home and School Federation, also would like to hear from groups and individuals concerning their ideas following the broadcasts.

DAD—EVER WONDER how your store of general knowledge compares with that of your son or daughter in high school? Members of the Winnipeg Rotary Club at a recent luncheon matched wits with a team of youngsters selected from among the offspring of club members, in a mock-up of the popular quiz show Reach for the Top, seen Thursdays on CBWT and CBXT. After a wide-ranging series of questions had been posed and answered, the scores were totalled and—you guessed it—the younger set won by a healthy margin!

Their victory is additionally impressive when the high calibre of the adult team members is considered. They were: George Goodrick, a building products company credit manager; Hugh Lloyd, manager of a metal products concern; Dr. L. O. Bradley, a hospital administrator, and Rev. Dr. W. C. Lockhart, principal of United College. The boys and girls are identified on their desks in the picture. Warren Davis, left, was quizmaster.

Drama of Edmonton-born Victim of Nazis

AT EASTER TIME, just a few months before the end of the Second World War, a brave and unusual Edmonton-born Danish boy, Kim Malthe-Brun, was shot by the Nazis for his work in the Danish underground.

Before he died, he managed to smuggle out of the prison numerous messages on bits and pieces of paper and cloth, to his mother, his sweetheart and friends in the underground, by bribing German guards, and in various other ways, such as pasting a letter to the bottom of a cardboard box which found its way from his cell to his home. Other letters from the boy were sent in the quota which prisoners were allowed to send their families.

After the war, Kim's writings were published in one of the most inspiring records of those bitter years, a highly-moving account of his lonely, miserable travels to maturity in his cell, as he and his

Japan's Two Worlds

by Michael Maclear

Does East really meet West in Japan, the most westernized of the oriental nations? A special program Sunday, January 27 on CBC-TV answers this question with an emphatic "No"

IN JAPAN'S two worlds, East and West have come as close as they may ever get—and are still worlds apart.

Today, after just ten years of post-war independence, Japan is still widely viewed as westernized. Not so, say the Japanese. "The Far East is not the West," says Japan's elder statesman, Shigeru Yoshida. "Your people want to impose their own ideas, but some ideas we cannot adopt—we cannot take in."

His words reflect the importance of Japan's present-day national reappraisal, for if western ideas do not apply in this most progressive of eastern nations, then where else in Asia can western-style democracy succeed?

"Our struggle is to re-establish a new nationalized democracy," states Yoshida in a special CBC television news documentary, Japan's Two Worlds which realistically examines the course and character of the world's third greatest industrial nation and finds it diverging from western ways. The program is seen Sunday afternoon on CBC-TV.

The documentary follows the Tokaido, or "Eastern Way." Here, along the historic route between Kyoto and Tokyo, old traditions serve as the basis for social progress. Japan's road is seen as modernization, not westernization; it shows a technological but not ideological likeness. The facade but not the foundation has changed.

"It has not been such a great change as everybody seems to think," explains one Japanese. "The change is purely material; the old spiritual Japan remains. It will link itself up completely with old traditions. That is what is happening now."

Or, in yet other words, there's a conscious national need to "japanize" Japan. Western ways and influence, far from converting Japan, have cut "woundingly" into its social structure, says Yoshida, and so Japan is reverting to the more familiar code of family and state loyalty and duty — traditions which can be as good as they can be bad and which, anyhow, are necessary. "Japan," comments a western observer, "can never afford confusion of character."

The character of the Japanese evolved with the Tokaido, forged through the compulsory pilgrimage along the 400-mile route 400 years ago. Whether lord or lackey, the Japanese journeyed to Kyoto in homage to the emperors, who in turn came annually to old Edo (Tokyo), the seat of the shoguns — the generals who really ruled Japan. The Tokaido journey was first enforced as a token of loyalty; it became a measure of unity. There were 53 stations along the way. From these grew the industrial cities and social system of today—founded and patterned still on principles of duty and dedication. Old Kyoto still expresses a collective identity. And modern Tokyo is the result of organized ideas and endeavour.

A journey along the Tokaido reveals values colourful and meaningful. In Kyoto, in Japan's Two Worlds, the park crowds put away their transistor radios when the strolling samisen players arrive. Or they raptly watch the traditional cherry-dance, ab-

WORLD'S LARGEST CITY WITHOUT NEWSPAPERS

Canada's Loggers Face Slack Period;
Citizens Miss Ads More Than News

LOGGERS WORKING in the forests of northern Canada have been facing cutbacks in employment during the past weeks, the result of actions taken by workers in a city thousands of miles away. The loggers' plight is just one of the many ramifications of the strike that has forced suspension of publication by all of New York's newspapers for more than a month. Without the mammoth daily drain on newsprint supplies through purchases by the New York papers, stocks have been piling up, less output is needed from the mills and, following the productivity stream back to its source, fewer trees have to be felled to meet market requirements.

The effects of such a large-scale strike at present on the economy of North America reach even further than the remote lumber camps of northern Canada. The lowering of the loggers' incomes is reflected in a consequent drop in sales for the merchants from whom the workers buy their supplies; this, in turn, leads to fewer sales by wholesalers, and so the inevitable repercussions are felt in areas of the economy that would seem to have no connection with the newspaper industry.

But the strike's effects have been felt most keenly, of course, by those closest to the problem—the eight million New Yorkers who have been without newspapers since the first week in December.

CBC Radio's Project '63 this week (Sunday, January 27, 5:00 p.m.) will examine the New York newspaper strike and some of its consequences. The program, representing the work of several reporters for Project '63, has been prepared by freelance writer and broadcaster John David Hamilton.

Since December 7, when a combination of strikes and lockouts stopped production of the city's major newspapers, New Yorkers have had to rely mainly on radio and television stations and on small-circulation ethnic journals for news coverage. In normal times, they buy 5.7 million papers daily and 7.2 million on Sunday. In attempts to fill the gap, imports of out-of-town newspapers has been doubled and tripled, but, despite increased deliveries, editions of Newark, Philadelphia and Boston papers are sold out soon after reaching the newsstands. Radio and TV outlets have expanded their operations to increase their coverage of news, features, public services, theatrical reviews and editorials. One FM station presents nothing but news all day, and another radio station even presents obituaries in its newscasts.

But news coverage isn't the only area hard hit by the strike; in fact, it may not be the most important loss in the eyes of most New Yorkers. A survey conducted by the Columbia School of Journalism indicates that advertisements and feature items are missed as much or more than "hard news" coverage. The newspapers provided the main advertising medium for many leading businesses, especially department stores, and this avenue of advertising was closed during the important pre-Christmas buying period. Some big stores had broadsides printed and plastered over the city's 6,600 subway cars, but for those who rely on classified ads—renting agents and apartment seekers, for instance—the situation has been desperate, with no advertising "market-place" available to exchange goods and services. Those looking for employment and those seeking employees are kept apart by a wall of blank paper.

The world of showbusiness, with its heavy reliance on display advertising, reviews and columns, has also been affected. The league of New York Theatres set up a telephone answering service to tell prospective theatre-goers what's going on in the showbusiness world, and several music and drama critics have appeared on TV and radio, but despite these efforts attendance has slumped, except for those long-running hits which are sold out months in advance. Movie theatres are apparently suffering the most, and a public relations executive of a major film distributor says "the strike is killing us."

The shut-down began when members of the typographers' union struck four of the city's major newspapers, the Times, the Daily News, the Journal-American, and the World Telegram and Sun. Under an agreement among members of the publishers' association that a strike against one newspaper is a strike against all, the other main dailies in the city closed down operations.

Committees of inquiry have been set up, but an early settlement is considered unlikely. Ironically, the striking printers are not the hardest hit by the closings, since they receive weekly strike benefits from their union. But the deliverymen, reporters and other newspaper workers who have been idled, not to mention the large

Alberta's 1000-Acre Zoo

*The Alberta Game Farm returns to CBC-TV
Saturday, January 26, with its acreage doubled and more species than ever*

AN UNKNOWING TOURIST driving into Edmonton from the south-west might think he had somehow arrived at the Serengeti plains of Tanganyika. In a natural setting enclosed with only an occasional fence, zebra, Grant's gazelle, black-buck antelope, and sitatunga languidly graze in the sparkling Alberta sunshine. The vain peacock preens himself in a tree, while a half-dozen varieties of crane flit about.

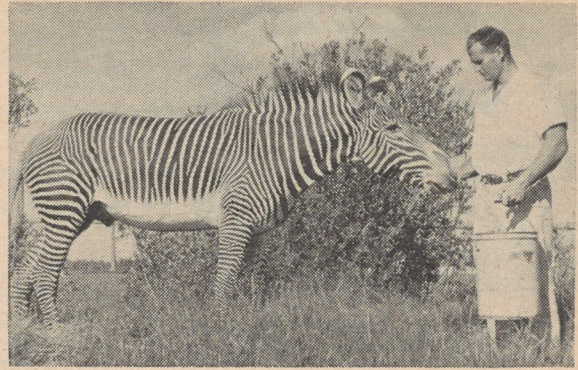

But as the traveller continues along scenic Highway 14, a large sign looms ahead, announcing the Alberta Game Farm—the unique establishment of former wrestling promoter Al Oeming.

The Farm, recently doubled in size to 1,000 acres, teems with more than 1,100 animals of some 47 species, plus 1,000 birds of at least 33 species. Most of the tremendously varied fauna of the continent are represented, including the giant Swann Hills grizzlies, moose, elk, wolves, cougars, big horn sheep, Rocky Mountain goats, timber wolves and the northern musk-ox. Hundreds of rare and exotic species from Africa, Asia and South America share the broad acreage.

So unusual is the Alberta Game Farm—both for its variety of animals, and for its beautiful, unspoiled setting—that it has become one of Alberta's major tourist attractions. Established in 1959, it has since been seen by close to two million visitors. Its success is even more impressive when it is considered that no public funds are involved in financing it; admission charges, the sale of animals to other zoos, and Oeming's own pocketbook pay for the maintenance, care and continuous expansion program.

The Farm's energetic founder, manager and chief public relations man, Al Oeming, is a living example of what hitching one's wagon to a star can accomplish. Now 36 years old, he has seen the fulfillment of a dream he first had as an Edmonton schoolboy. He attended the University of Alberta, receiving his B.A., B.Sc. and M.Sc. degrees and currently he is working on his doctorate in zoology.

With his dream still fixed firmly in his mind, in the post-war years he became a professional wrestler, then a wrestling promoter during the biggest days of Edmonton's oil boom. His rugged, muscular frame still gives the impression that he would be successful in the wrestling ring, but the "grunt and groan" game was only a means to an end.

Finally, in 1959 he was able to select a site, 500 acres of grazing land in the Ardrossan area, amidst pleasant Parkland countryside 15 miles southwest of Edmonton. Al and his wife May lived in a trailer on the land for many months while he and a small crew of Indians cut brush, cleared paddocks and pathways through wilderness acres, around swamps, a lake and across low rolling knolls. As Al explains, "I always felt that machinery would have chewed up the cite far too much and I was determined to retain its naturalness—hence, we cleared by hand."

Soon the wire-mesh fences were up, signs had been erected and the first of the ever-increasing number of animal species were in place. Oeming was on hand to greet the visitors personally — frequently with his pet cheetah, a fleet-footed jungle cat that he raised from a kitten, at his heels.

A CBC Winnipeg television crew, consisting of producer Ron Bashford, sound man Leo Gantzert and production assistant Don Brown spent five weeks at the Alberta Game Farm last summer filming this second series of 13 programs. With excellent co-operation from both Al and his animal friends, the crew returned with thousands of feet of film which Frank Stroppa is editing.

First of the new series of programs is seen Saturday afternoon, January 26.

Rather large for a house pet, this cheetah is becoming as well-known as its master, for it accompanies him wherever he goes. Raised by him from a kitten, it is entirely tame. "Twana" is its name.

Program Notes

JANUARY 26

See also page 4 of next week's issue for possible changes in these notes and additional program information

World Of Sport

Cross-Canada Curling. Keith Barry reports from Halifax as Art Burke's rink from Prince Edward Island meets skip George Giannou's Newfoundland rink.

World Of Sport

Power Boating. Frank Stalley is host of this history of power boating and examination of the sport as it exists today in Canada. Program includes historical notes on the development of boats and motors and specially-filmed scenes of power boats in action on Canadian waters.

Bugs Bunny

Vera's Cruise. Sylvester Pussy Cat presents a series of cartoons showing his misadventures while pursuing Tweety Pie, who is on a European tour with Granny.

Countrytime

A film about a young city couple, both with daily jobs, who build up a herd of goats in the hope that this will eventually support them.

Gardener Stan Westaway talks about soil sterilants, fungicides and how to treat your soil before seed sowing.

Alberta Game Farm

Al Oeming welcomes the public back to the Alberta Game Farm for another series. Strolling along the pathways and stopping at a number of the exhibits, Al points out the new additions and changes which have taken place at the Farm since the last visit of CBC-TV's cameras.

The Farm has been increased from 500 to 1,000 acres and now includes a large wolf warren, cougar enclosure, alpine rodent garden, a new huge enclosure for the Swann Hills grizzly bears and many other new additions.

In this first trip in the new series, Al also tells about the next 12 visits and shows the animals to be discussed. Produced by Ron Bashford.

Beverly Hillbillies

Cousin Pearl decides to give yodeling lessons, touching off an uproar in the neighbourhood.

The Nurses

A Private Room. A man who has been apprehended and wounded by the police while robbing a store becomes a prisoner-patient in the hospital.

Red River Jamboree

The good old days of Western Canada are recalled in songs, dances and tales, with singing host Stu Phillips, Peggy Neville, The Altones, the Valley Beaux and Belles, square dance caller Jo Johannson, Ted Komar and the Selkirk Settlers. Produced at CBC Winnipeg by Ernie Mutimer.

Guest is Donna Andert. Some of the selections:

Red River Shore Stu
The Old Red River Cart..... Peggy
The Covered Wagon Rolled Group
Right Along Valley Beaux and Belles
Winnipeg Reel

NHL Hockey

Bill Hewitt reports from Maple Leaf Gardens as the Toronto Maple Leafs meet the Boston Bruins.

CBWT-Thriller

The Cheaters. A broken-down actor visits a snobbish household during Christmas.

CITY WITHOUT NEWSPAPERS

numbers of employees in other fields affected indirectly, do not necessarily enjoy the same benefits. Some reporters have been hired by broadcasting stations to help with the heavy work load brought about by increased news coverage, but others have been forced to find employment in other fields, at least temporarily.

Although no figures are available, the sale of books and magazines should show vast increases, especially among those who commute into New York from distant points. Railroad commuters, faced with the prospect of many hours of travel without reading matter, might have to engage in conversation with fellow passengers and this, of course, is practically unthinkable.

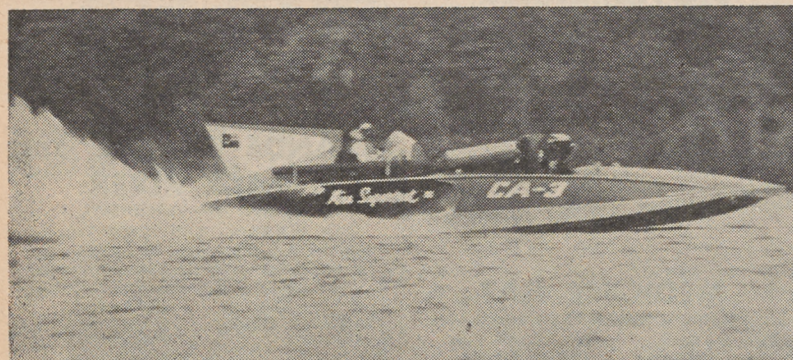

Despite the many disruptions, however, much of New York is functioning pretty well as usual, according to John Hamilton, who bases his opinion on the findings of the Project '63 reporters.

Program Notes

JANUARY 27

See also page 4 of next week's issue for possible changes in these notes and additional program information

CBXT—Saturday Heroes

Sportscasters Glenn Bjarnason and Ernie Afaganis turn the sport spotlight on the 13-year-old and under basketball stars of the Edmonton Boys' Basketball League.

Country Calendar

A ten-minute feature covering highlights of the annual meeting of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture held in Windsor January 21-25.

Remainder of program to be announced.

Time Of Your Life

The Runaway. Host Peter Kastner introduces this hour-long play written by Rose Wilcox and based on the novel, The Wonderful Winter by Marchette Chute. Time, the days of Elizabeth I. When life becomes unbearable for young Robert Wakefield, an orphan who lives with two maiden aunts and a tutor in a country manor house, he runs away with his dog. He has many exciting adventures as he makes his way to London. He takes refuge in a theatre and is befriended by one of the actors and manager of the playhouse, John Heminges.

Starring Rex Hagon, Norman Welch, Ruth Springford, Tom Kneebone and Gillie Fenwick. Produced by Bill Davidson.

Japan's Two Worlds

A special film documentary about present-day Japan, prepared by CBC's Far East correspondent Michael Maclear. The program examines the extent and results of Western influence on post-war Japan and reports particularly on the impact of Western ideology upon Japan's political, social and economic structure, and how Western ideas have affected centuries-old Japanese traditions.

Place Ville Marie, Montreal's 42-storey city within a city, is visited Sunday on 20/20.

City Within a City. A look at Montreal's 42-storey Place Ville Marie and the people who work in it. This massive project is examined from the human point of view. Does the architecture live up to the definition of being "the enclosure of space for the use of man?" Viewers meet many people who carry on their daily tasks in this, the largest office building in the British Commonwealth.

Twentieth Century

Italy's Booming North. Filmed in and around Milan, the program illustrates the current industrial boom in Italy, and includes interviews with industrialists, architects and economists.

Citizens' Forum

The Family. Fourth of a five-part series about social problems facing present-day families. Today, The Wedding Date — a dramatization of teenage marriages points out that North American children are encouraged to mature rapidly in social graces and emotional attachments but complex society makes economic independence more and more difficult at an early age. A panel of experts discusses the problem. Host and moderator is Bernard Ostry.

The Nature Of Things

From Water to Land. Guest is Dr. Alfred S. Romer, eminent palaeontologist of Harvard University. Dr. Romer points out that the development of lungs, legs, and a new kind of egg was not originally to help fishes become amphibians, but rather to enable fishes to survive long periods of drought. Several animals still living give good clues to the nature of some of the ancestral forms.

Walt Disney

Johnny Shiloh. Part II. An historic dramatization about the 10-year-old boy who became one of the Civil War's most honoured combat heroes.

Today, Johnny's heroism is rewarded but his happiness is short-lived when he is captured by the Confederates.

Hazel

Hazel's nephew arrives in town to promote a new venture but his actions cause George to become suspicious.

Flashback

Panelists Alan Millar, Allan Mannings, Margaret Morris and guest panelist actress Sylvia Lennick attempt to identify famous persons, objects and fads of the past.

Ed Sullivan

Ed's guests include the comedy team of Wayne and Shuster and actress-singer Janet Blair.

Bonanza

Half-a-Rogue. Hoss meets his physical equal in a half-breed mountain man.

Quest

Kim. A drama adapted by Hugh Webster from the book, The Heroic Heart, a collection of letters by Kim Malthe-Brun. A member of the Danish underground movement, Kim Malthe-Brun is captured, imprisoned and sentenced by the Nazis in 1944. He records his thoughts on the life he left behind and experiences in prison in letters written to his mother, his sweetheart and the underground. Years later, his letters, smuggled out of the prison camp, were collected in the book, The Heroic Heart.

Starring Douglas Rain, Garrick Hagon, Heidy Hunt, Sydney Sturgess, Paul Harding, Sydney Brown and Peter Kastner. Produced by Eric Till.

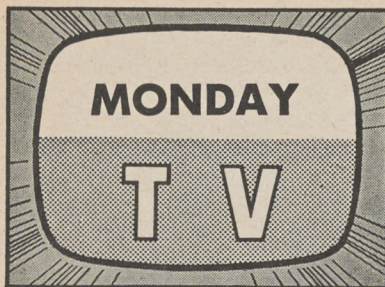

CBWT—Of Ballads And Bards

Folksongs with vocalist Reg Gibson and guitarist-vocalist Jim Pirie. Producer, Ray McConnell. A few of their selections:

Cod Liver Oil	Reg
Nine Hundred Miles	Reg and Jim
Git Along Little Doggies	Reg

CBXT—Thriller

Man in the Cage. A man arrives in Tangier in search of his missing brother who disappeared with a million dollars worth of heroin. Host is Boris Karloff.

Festival

David: Chapter II. A drama by M. Charles Cohen. In his indecision about the future, a Jewish youth rebels against just about everything — his parents, his girl friend, his buddies and all their efforts to make him conform. In nightmares and daydreams he searches for the answer to his dilemma.

Starring Donnelly Rhodes, Toby Tarnow, Powys Thomas and Lynne Gorman, with George Sperdakos, Art Jenoff, Allan Blye, Marshall Howard, Will Albert, Martin Lager, Frank

Don Pimm continues his demonstration of wild-life modelling and tells little-known facts about animals Monday on CBXT's Gateway.

Baker, Heath Lamberts and Rochelle Goldstein. Produced by Harvey Hart.

CBWT-Surfside 6

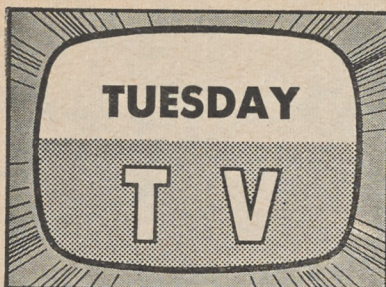

Laugh for the Lady. Dave Thorne ends up in the middle of a marital triangle.

Rebellious Youth Subject of Drama

M. CHARLES COHEN, who has written many original dramas for Playdate and other CBC-TV series, spent six months last year preparing his first major television play, David: Chapter II, which the Festival series will present as a 90-minute production on Monday night, January 28.

Cohen describes it as a story of rebellious youth, in particular a Jewish lad in Winnipeg in the summer of 1948, who resists just about everything, including his parents' wish that he will settle down and find a good, steady job. The lad explains himself this way: "I start from the premise that middle-class society stinks!—Can't they smell it themselves?—no, I suppose not, you're always the last to know . . . and I reject it entirely. I reject middle-class values; I reject middle-class morality, and especially I reject middle-class materialism and occupational striving . . . Which still leaves me with a problem, right? I've got to live, whatever that means."

The Lively Arts

A BBC film study of the new Coventry Cathedral, designed to replace the 500-year-old church destroyed by Nazi fire-bombs during the Second World War. The architect of the Cathedral, Sir Basil Spence, is also a subject of the program.

Coventry Cathedral: Sir Basil's Masterpiece

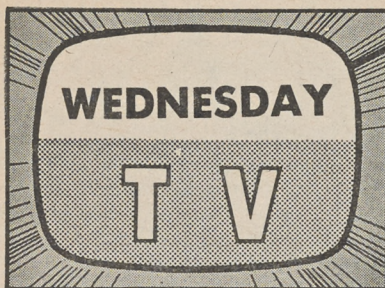

WHEN THE NAZIS bombed and destroyed the five-centuries-old Coventry Cathedral on November 14, 1940, Basil Spence (now knighted), through whose genius it was to rise again splendidly nearly 22 years later, was a staff captain in the Intelligence Corps. The next day, he reported the raid to his general with a feeling of irretrievable loss, thinking what a challenge it would be to his generation if it should ever be rebuilt.

Later, Spence followed with interest the steps being taken to start rebuilding Coventry Cathedral, and the turbulence they created. The town complained that it needed hospitals and schools more than a cathedral. Designs were studied and cast aside. No idea seemed to satisfy the authorities. When it was announced in 1950 that a competition for designs for the cathedral was open to any architect in the Commonwealth, Spence sent for the conditions, as did 600 other architects. The problem of meeting them was so difficult that only 219 plans were submitted for judging.

Spence's first visit to the ruins at Coventry was a moving one. "This was a holy place," he recalls, "and although the conditions specified that we need keep only the tower, spire and the two crypt chapels, I felt I could not destroy this beautiful place, and that whatever else I did I would preserve as much of the old cathedral as I could. I saw the old cathedral as standing clearly for the sacrifice, one side of the Christian faith, and I knew my task was to design a new one which should stand for the triumph of the resurrection . . . In these few moments the Helene Baillargeon with an English speaking puppet mouse named Suzie, gives lessons in French for preschoolers.

National School Telecasts

Canadian History. The fourth in a series of five programs built around outstanding political leaders in the turbulent history of Canada's 19th Century — Joseph Howe, Alexander Galt, John A. Macdonald, Charles Tupper and Georges Etienne Cartier. The films were produced by the National Film Board of Canada and have been shown previously on the CBC-TV network.

Today, The Big Man, (Charles Tupper). In the early 1860's it was apparent in the Maritimes that a solution to growing economic problems lay in some sort of union of colonies. For years, Joseph Howe proposed confederation of the Canadas. But by 1864 he became convinced that this action would present too many problems to Nova Scotia, and he then opposed the idea. He was replaced as an advocate of confederation by Charles Tupper, leader of the Conservative party, who became premier in 1864. The program deals largely with the rivalry between these two men, the most contentious issue being that of confederation.

Loretta Young

Different dramas each day are presented by hostess Loretta Young.

Take Thirty

1. Money's Worth. Jean Morrison investigates winter driving equipment and techniques designed to improve driving safety.

2. Guest is Kathleen Halthusen of the Toronto YMCA, associated for the

Two More Stations Join the Network

Effective 6:00 p.m. Thursday, January 31, Grande Prairie and Peace River residents will see programs transmitted directly to the CBXAT and CBXAT-1 transmitters on a new microwave system. Programs broadcast by CBXT Edmonton—both network and local—will be seen in Grande Prairie and Peace River at the same time as they are seen in Edmonton, rather than after a one-to-three-weeks delay as previously. When the system is in full operation, all programming seen on CBXT between 12:30 p.m. and sign off—including evening movies—will be seen simultaneously on CBXAT and CBXAT-1.

past few years with a village development scheme in Pakistan.

Scarlett Hill

Una Dodds. Conclusion of the story begun last Friday in which a romance between a brilliant physicist and his assistant ends in tragedy.

Ladies First

1. Mat Gauer shows how to prepare a delicious but economical veal loaf dinner.

2. Alice Poyser reports on some of the provocative food-for-thought which is to be found in new Canadian writing.

Razzle Dazzle

1. With his magic boxes, Wizzey tries to cure Michele of a headache; in the process her head gets mislaid.

2. In Howard's comics, Mendel Meek remembers the year 1588 when he invented ships that move by steam.

3. Playalong, Terrible Ten, Nutty Newsreel, Comment, Kooky Commercial.

Scarlet Pimpernel

The Lady in Distress. The Scarlet Pimpernel saves an aristocratic lady from imprisonment and death.

CBWT—Stop, Look and Listen

Marlborough has the mid-winter blues and Florence, Charlemagne and Henrietta try everything to cheer him up. But it is something which happens at the end of the show that finally does the trick.

Hobbies 'N Handicrafts. Geoff Spurr continues his ceramics project and demonstrates how to make a wall plaque and a trivet for hot dishes.

CBWT—Spotlight

Advice on how to select meat cuts. Speakers are H. D. Scotchmer, assistant-superintendent of the livestock division of the Federal department of agriculture, and Al Johnson, beef merchandising expert with the Swift Canadian Co. Host is George Knight.

CBXT—Reach for the Top

Colin MacLean introduces a fast-paced quiz game that is both interesting and informative, in which Edmonton high schoolers battle for scholarship prizes.

Playdate

The Messenger. A comedy-drama by Jacqueline Rosenfeld. A Canadian businessman arrives in London on a delicate and private mission—to extricate his younger brother from the clutches of a fortune-hunting older woman.

Starring Douglas Rain and Peter Donat, with special guest stars, Toby Robins, Frances Hyland and Kate Reid. Produced by George McCowan.

Hitchcock Presents

Suspense directed by Alfred Hitchcock, who provides the comic relief himself.

CBWT—Eye to Eye

Harvey Dawes is host of a public affairs program highlighting matters in Greater Winnipeg.

CBWT—Travel Unlimited

A film on the growth of air transportation. Host is Bob Burton.

Lovely Toby Robins is one of the special guest stars on Playdate's presentation of The Messenger by Jacqueline Rosenfeld. It is seen Thursday on CBC-TV.

CBXT-Ladies First

1. Mort Coburn discusses children's reading habits.
2. Chef Casagrande gives a demonstration in baking bread.
3. Mrs. Kostash teaches Jo and Ernie the art of basket weaving.

Western Schools

A five-part series explaining the adaptation and behaviour of plants and animals in relation to their environment.

Written and narrated by Dr. Ian McTaggart Cowan, head of the department of zoology, University of British Columbia. Produced by Tom Connachie.

Today, Frame of Life. For the past 300- to 500-million years animals have been steadily changing in many ways so that the simplest kinds that began the chain of events became more complicated and less and less like their ancestors. The program briefly explains this evolution of animal kinds.

CBWT-Biography

Admiral Richard Byrd. The story of an adventurer, a great explorer, a poet and philosopher. He was the first man to fly over the North and South Poles and he explored more unknown land area than any man in history. Through his long career he not only explored the unknown, but he found that great satisfaction that comes to men who see what no mortal ever viewed.

Game Features NHL Top - Scoring Lines

by

DON WITTMAN
CBC Winnipeg
Sportscaster

WHEN NATIONAL Hockey League viewers click the button on the "magic eye" Saturday night to watch Toronto play Boston, they'll view the two highest-scoring lines in the NHL this season. And, surprising as it may seem, the top trio in point production wears the colours of the Boston Bruins, a club that floundered in the league cellar last year, and still is stumbling in the dark this term. However the Bruins lay claim to the highest-scoring line, comprised of Tommy Williams, John Bucyk and Murray Oliver. This threesome, at the time of this writing, had accumulated more than 100 points. Bucyk was the top man, with 41 points—three more than Oliver—while Williams had 23.

Toronto's top-scoring line is the Red Kelly, Eddie Shack, Frank Mahovlich unit. Mahovlich was the leading point man in this threesome with 43 points, including a league-leading 23 goals.

But while the Leafs have two other high scoring lines backing up the Kelly, Shack, Mahovlich unit, the Bruins don't. And therein lies the story. The Leafs are fighting for the leadership, and the Bruins are at the bottom of the league.

Fidelio. Opera in two acts by Beethoven.

Cast: Don Fernando, minister — baritone; Don Pizarro, governor of the state prison — baritone (Morley Meredith); Florestan, a prisoner—tenor (Jon Vickers); Leonore, his wife, known as Fidelio —soprano (Birgit Nilsson); Rocco, keeper — bass; Marzelline, his daughter — soprano; Jaquino, gatekeeper — tenor; a captain. Place, a Spanish state prison in the vicinity of Seville.

Act I. Courtyard of the prison. Jaquino is ready to marry Marzelline but she loves the new assistant, Fidelio. Fidelio is really Leonore disguised as a youth. Her husband Florestan has disappeared and she suspects Pizarro of having imprisoned him. Having gained the confidence of Rocco she is allowed to visit the prison.

Pizarro appears and receives notice of the impending inspection by the minister. He is filled with anxiety as he has imprisoned Florestan from motives of personal vengeance. To prevent discovery of this he determines that Florestan must die before the minister arrives. As Rocco refuses to murder the dying man, he is ordered to uncover an old well in which the prisoner is to be buried. Pizarro himself resolves to kill Florestan. Leonore has been listening. Rocco allows the prisoners to get some fresh air at the request of Leonore. She cannot find Florestan among them. Pizarro returns and orders the prisoners back to their cells.

Act II. The dark dungeon of Florestan. He sinks to the ground from weakness as Rocco and Leonore arrive. Leonore recognizes him but dares not speak and helps to dig the grave. Florestan revives and Leonore gives him bread. Pizarro descends to the dungeon and is about to stab Florestan when Leonore throws herself before her husband and points a pistol at Pizarro. Trumpet calls herald the arrival of the minister and Pizarro hurries away. In the following duet, Florestan and Leonore express their happiness.

Change of scene: Courtyard of the castle. Fernando announces the king's pardon. Leonore takes the chains from her husband. He is free and Pizarro is arrested.

Other attractions on the CBC network on Saturday include another match in the Cross-Canada Curling series. Art Burke's Prince Edward Island foursome trades shots with the Newfoundland rink skipped by George Giannou. Cross Canada curling was introduced on television last year, with the John David Lyon rink from Winnipeg winning the CBC trophy. This year, however, a new champion will be crowned. The 11 rinks competing in the series are the same rinks that represented their province at the Brier. And the Norm Houck rink, which captured the Manitoba championship, was eliminated in the opening match by Ernie Richardson of Saskatchewan.

Although the mercury is producing sub-zero readings these days, boating enthusiasts will be interested in a Saturday feature on power boat racing. The history of the sport, and an examination of how it exists in Canada today, will be included.

And for the bowlers, the usual Saturday feature from O'Connor Bowl in Toronto is included in the viewing schedule.

sorbing its theme of chu and ko—loyalty to country and kin. Millions throng the Shinto shrines, where publicized donations from the big industrialists or snapshots for the family album are expressions of belonging.

At the Ryoanji temple of Zen Buddhism, a student talks to the famed rock garden about his problems in love. He explains it with unintentional humour. The problem of resolving personality is the agony of every Japanese. And, in fact, the importance of old Kyoto is what the new generation learns from it.

The lessons emerge along the Tokaido—a futuristic Buddha guarding the ricefields; a Shinto torii in a factory compound. It is a journey through modern stereotyped towns, producing and displaying the ultimate in technological achievement—yet a world in which the westerner is infinitely more strange than the latest appliance. Few foreigners see or are seen beyond Kyoto or Tokyo—and, explains a long-time American resident, western ideas are not understood and do not apply. Instead, there's what one Japanese calls a "transistor culture." It is best seen in a transistor radio factory, where company paternalism and communal living powers the productivity that has made Japan the fastest-growing industrial nation on earth. Labour has a robot quality; but, it's explained the Japanese find individual satisfaction in the collective achievement.

At the end of this journey, Tokyo is the total of what has gone before. It is not the appearance of the city but the way it's constructed that's real and important. There are the trade unionists who—come May Day—don the garb of shogun times to parade the values of centuries. There's the nightclub girl wending her way to a neo-Buddhist political rally. There's the oppressive anonymity of the subway crowds and yet the individual perspective of government officials engaging in karate with the modern parliament building as a backdrop.

There are the country women who commute daily to voluntarily clean the grounds of the Imperial Palace. And there are the millions who even today journey for a sight of the Emperor, finding reassurance of new liberties in the recognition of old loyalties. The Emperor is the embodiment of democratic sovereignty, but not as anyone in the west would know it. For Japan, appearance and actuality are two different worlds today, and tomorrow's best east-west maxim is that the 'twain can never wholly meet.

THE REITH LECTURES:

A Psychiatrist-Anthropologist Looks at Britain

THE 1962 REITH LECTURES, a recent highlight of BBC radio, offered an examination of what has happened to Britain since the beginning of the century from the point of view of the psychiatrist and anthropologist, rather than from that of the economist or the politician. This is the first time the Reith Lectures have been devoted to a subject of this nature. The speaker is G. M. Carstairs, DPM, MA, FRCP, Ed., professor of psychological medicine, University of Edinburgh, and honorary director of the MRC Unit for Research on the Epidemiology of Psychiatric Illness.

The six lectures were recorded and will be heard on CBC Radio on Monday nights at 10:30, beginning January 28, under the title of This Island Now. They will be followed, on March 11, by a seventh program, a CBC-organized discussion of points raised in the lectures, by a panel including a sociologist, an anthropologist, and a psychiatrist. Program organizer is Dr. Lewis Miller of the CBC public affairs department.

Professor Carstairs is exceptionally well qualified for an enquiry of this nature. Born in India 47 years ago, he was educated at George Watson's College and Edinburgh University, where he read arts and medicine. Graduating in 1941, he was a Fine Arts Medallist and also represented Scotland and Britain as an athlete.

He served in the RAF during the Second World War. Afterwards he became increasingly interested in anthropology. This led to a two-year field study in North India and to the publication in 1957 of his book The Twice Born, a study of a Hindu community.

The title he chose for his Reith Lectures is taken from the poem by W. H. Auden, published in 1938, called Look, Stranger, on this island now.

In his first lecture, titled Stability and Change in Social Environment, Professor Carstairs examines different methods of studying the stresses which have arisen in British contemporary society during the period of rapid change. "Formerly," he says, "our attitude to the rest of the world was outward-looking. We annexed, administered, and developed large areas and sent missionaries to convert their peoples to our religion in the conviction that we were doing all this for their own good as well as ours. Then gradually this tide turned. We found it less easy to be quite sure that our way of life was necessarily the best . . . A great deal of the fascination of social anthropology has lain not merely in its enlargement of our knowledge of the range of established patterns of human behaviour but even more in its capacity to give us a better understanding of our own. No doubt the

8:00 p.m.—Education Meets the Challenge of Change
(CBK only)

What attempts are being made for education to meet the challenge of change and how realistic is the new approach? Can the educators convince the public that a new concept of learning is essential and needs their understanding and support? These questions are answered in a series of three panel discussions broadcast January 29, February 26 and March 26 on CBK. The series has been arranged by the Saskatchewan Federation of Home and School in cooperation with the Provincial Department of Education. Chairman is Judge R. L. Brownridge of Regina.

Today, Changing Curriculum and Methods in the Light of New Knowledge. Taking part are: Henry Janzen, director of curricula, department of education, Regina; Dr. Owen G. Holmes, professor of chemistry at the University of Saskatchewan; and W. A. Herle, immediate past president of the Saskatchewan Teachers' Federation and a teacher at Central Collegiate Institute, Regina.

Actor-writer Hugh Webster has adapted the book, The Heroic Heart, for presentation on CBC-TV's Quest, Sunday night, January 27, under the title of Kim. It will feature Douglas Rain as the voice of Kim in the narration, and Garrick Hagen as Kim on camera; Heidy Hunt as the sweetheart; Sydney Sturgess as the mother; Paul Harding as a Gestapo officer; Sydney Brown as a sweeper; and Peter Kastner as a young boy. Production is by Eric Till.

Kim was born of Danish parents who had settled in Alberta, but they all returned to Denmark when the boy was small, and he grew up there, joined the merchant navy, and travelled between Denmark and Holland, Sweden and Finland. When he was 16 he joined the resistance, and, like Hedager, led an exciting but nerve-wrecking life. Kim was captured by the Germans in Denmark in the fall of 1944.

great change in Britain's political and economic position in the world has contributed towards our becoming a more inward-looking society, but social anthropology has provided the means by which this new attitude can find expression."

Professor Carstairs says "I shall concern myself particularly with the interaction of tradition, social environment, and personality in our own changing society, and I shall choose for particular examination a number of areas in which things seem to have gone wrong—indicators of malaise in our community today. In so doing I shall display my own special concern, which is to use the study of society as a means to better understanding of my fellow men . . . In medicine, pain and malaise have long been recognized as having a positive function, alerting the organisms to threats to its well-being, if not to its survival, so that something will be done to meet the threat. I propose to examine in this light some of the indications of pathology—of malaise in our society—in order to see whether the social sciences can suggest a diagnosis or can indicate what future developments these symptoms may presage."

In his second lecture, titled The First Years, Professor Carstairs will discuss the contrast in the experiences of early childhood in different social classes in Britain. He believes that these experiences have a lasting influence on adult behaviour. The subject of his third lecture is Vicissitudes of Adolescence. He sees the problems of adolescent behaviour as both reflecting and anticipating changes in adult social behaviour.

During this century there have been radical changes in the role of women in our society, creating psychological problems in family life which are only beginning to be recognized now. Professor Carstairs discusses some of them in his fourth talk. In his fifth talk, called Living and Partly Living, he draws attention to some unsolved problems in medicine, and to a neglected area of medical education. His final talk, titled The Changing British Character, will consider some new trends which will, he believes, have an increasing influence on personality development in our society during the remainder of the 20th century.

idea of the design was planted. Its essence never changed."

Back in Edinburgh where he was living then, Spence prepared his first plan within 24 hours. "I was strongly influenced by the cathedral at Albi, in the south of France," he says. "The walls rise sheer, and though the exterior is plain and simple it has a grandeur in strong contrast to the interior, which is very rich . . . I therefore planned a very simple exterior of pinky-grey stone similar to the original cathedral and a rich interior with a huge tapestry behind the high altar." For months he worked far into the night, after his regular day's work was done, listening continually to recordings of the Brandenburg Concertos for inspiration.

The idea for one of the attractive architectural surprises in the cathedral's interior came to Spence while having a tooth extracted. "I got an abscess on one of my upper teeth," he recalls. "My dentist advised immediate extraction with a local anaesthetic. I hate injections. At best I feel queer, but then I was run down and exhausted, and I passed out. My dream was wonderful. I was walking through the cathedral and it looked marvelous, with a light like Chartres. The altar looked tremendous, backed by a huge tapestry, but I could not see the windows until I went right in and turned half back—the walls were zig-zagging. When I came to I had been 'out' for quite a few minutes, and the dentist had perspiration pouring from his brow."

When the time came for handing in his design to the competition judges, Spence found he was reluctant to do it. He felt that putting it to practical purposes would destroy the deep spiritual contentment he had experienced while working on it. His wife insisted, "You have sweated all these months. You hand it in and don't be such an ass."

So he sent it off. "I can say with truth I did not have the faintest hope of success," he says. "I felt certain some bright young boy would come along and win it." One day, while he was making a business call in London, his secretary 'phoned through to say: "Mr. Spence, good news! May I be the first to congratulate you—you've won the competition!"

"It is difficult to describe the next few minutes," Spence recalls, "as I can't remember them very well; swirling mists, a rushing sound in my ears, and I found myself on a comfortable chair, with my client bending over me, his expression all sympathy. 'I'm terribly sorry, it must be awful news—you look ghastly,' he said. I stammered 'It's the best news I've ever had. I have won the competition for the new Coventry Cathedral'."

But his worries weren't over, for his plans were so fiercely attacked that construction was delayed for nearly five years. His cathedral was called "a ring-around God-box," "a cross between a super-cinema and a slaughterhouse" and "a monstrous architectural freak." Such criticism nearly bankrupted him, for it influenced other groups to withdraw commissions already given him and to withhold possible future ones. But now many of those same critics, when they step into the blaze of light inside the great church fortress at Coventry, and see its splendid simplicity, sense its strong feeling of life arising from death, of evil overcome and forgiven if not forgotten, have to admit it is an artistic masterpiece, "a plain jewel casket for many jewels inside," as its designer describes it.

Sir Basil considers the old and new cathedrals to be part of the same building. While respecting traditional ideas of a church, he has used modern techniques, designs and materials with brilliance. The result, awesome and majestic, is also warm, suggesting a huge reservoir of calm silence offering the mind comfort, rest and inspiration. The romance and rhythms of the best of medieval planning are there, but the effect is made contemporary by bold use of modern art, as CBC-TV viewers will see when a tour of Spence's masterpiece is presented on The Lively Arts, Tuesday night, January 29.

One of Spence's strokes of genius was replacing the traditional west wall of the new cathedral with a giant window, inscribed with a concourse of angels, through which passers-by can see what's going on inside. The window reflects the ruins of the old cathedral, with its altar still standing, bearing a cross made from two half-burnt timbers, and behind it, inscribed on the wall, the words "Father Forgive."

RECIPES FEATURED ON
"LADIES FIRST" EACH THURSDAY

PIZZA PIE

1 package hot roll mix
8 oz. can tomato sauce
6 oz. can tomato paste
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. oregano
⅛ tsp. garlic powder
1 lb. pork sausages
½ lb. grated sharp cheese
½ lb. sliced cooked mushrooms
½ cup minced onion

Prepare dough according to instructions on back of hot roll mix. Let rise until light.

While dough is rising prepare other ingredients.

Pan fry one pound sausage. Remove from pan and pan fry minced onion in one tablespoon sausage dripping. Add tomato sauce, tomato paste, salt, oregano and garlic powder.

Shred cheese. Flatten dough into baking pan, building it up around edges. Arrange half the cheese on the dough. Cover with tomato mixture. Top with remaining cheese and sausage slices. Sprinkle with grated sharp cheese

DON DEFORE, who portrays George Baxter, an average family man in the television series Hazel, on the CBC-TV network Sundays, has much the same role in actual life.

Hazel is based on the Ted Key cartoon series about a maid — played on TV by Shirley Booth — who really runs the household in which she is employed.

Don DeFore has a wife, Marion, whom he married in 1942. They have five children, Penny, 17, David, 15, Dawn, 12, Ronnie, 10, and Amy, 18 months.

The DeFores live in a farm house in Mandeville Canyon on the outskirts of Los Angeles. DeFore and his wife drew the plans for the house themselves. He made most of the furniture — a hobby of his — and she did all the interiors.

Born in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, DeFore was the only one of seven children to choose showbusiness as a career. He attended Washington High School in Cedar Rapids and later Iowa University, where he showed promise in basketball, baseball and track.

DeFore enrolled at Iowa University ostensibly to study law, but actually to work in dramatics. Acting as a course of study was limited at the university so DeFore left and went to California where he enrolled in the Pasadena Community Playhouse. He won a scholarship and stayed with the Playhouse for three years.

During this time DeFore collaborated with four fellow students on a play entitled Where Do We Go From Here. Oscar Hammerstein II saw the production in Hollywood and took DeFore, the play, and five others in the original cast to Broadway, where it ran four weeks.

After the play closed, DeFore remained in New York and got a role in the James Thurber-Elliott Nugent hit play, The Male Animal. He then played the same part in the Hollywood film version. Returning to Broadway, he appeared in the musical Sailor Beware, which starred Mary Martin.

DeFore then went back to the west coast and was an immediate hit in movies, appearing in such films as The Human Comedy, A Guy Named Joe, and Thirty Seconds Over Tokyo. Successful television appearances, such as a five-year run on The Ozzie and Harriet Show, followed.

Then came Hazel.
